Brief Bio

Daniel I. Wasserman, MD is a dermatologist and fellowship-trained Mohs surgeon in Naples, FL. His commitment to the Southwest Florida medical and professional community was recognized in 2014 when he was awarded the Top 40 Under 40 distinction.

Dr. Wasserman lectures on the use and diversity of photodynamic therapy including, but not limited to the implementation of differing light sources, wavelengths, treatment of actinic keratoses, non-melanoma skin cancer, acne, and scars. He has also led developed and implemented several clinical trials for the use of existing technologies for novel treatments such as the pulsed-dye laser for the red hair removal, alexandrite laser for the treatment of basal cell carcinoma, and the use of intraoperative fractionated CO2 lasers for the improvement of surgical outcomes for scars.

Dr. Wasserman enjoys lecturing not only existing on these dermatologic treatment modalities, but the novel use of these existing modalities for new skin disorders. He completed his residency training at the joint BU-Tufts residency program. Afterwards he completed fellowships with Drs. Rox Anderson and Gary Monheit in laser medicine and Mohs surgery respectively.
